Minors Offered by the Tepper School of Business

The Tepper School offers several minor options for students interested in studying business: Business Administration, Business Analytics and Optimization, Financial Management, Operations and Supply Chain Management, and Product Management.

To declare one of the above minors, students must successfully complete two courses that can be applied to the minor requirements. For students wishing to declare the Business Administration minor, one of the two courses must be either 70-101 Business Strategy Fundamentals, 70-122 Introduction to Accounting, or 73-102 Principles of Microeconomics/73-104 Principles of Microeconomics Accelerated. The second course can be any other course that can be applied to the Business Administration minor requirements.

The minor in Innovation and Entrepreneurship is offered by the Tepper School through the Integrated Design, Arts, and Technology (IDeATe) network; students must follow IDeATe policies and procedures for the minor including the declaration process identified by IDeATe.

Double-Counting

While there are no double counting restrictions between the minor and the student's home college general education requirements, only one minor course may double-count with any other major or minor requirements. The Minor in Operations and Supply Chain Management allows an additional double-count for a total of 2 courses that may double-count with any other major or minor requirements.
